

Supporting Figure 1: Vitality of sperm as assessed via Eosin test. Viable spermatozoa retained their natural color (white), while non-viable spermatozoa exhibited a red hue due to eosin penetration through the damaged cell membrane.