

Editor's note

Our last issue for 2018 is a symbolic one as the Journal moves on to article processing charges (APCs) from 2019. For the past year and a half, the JGH (Journal of Gastroenterology and Hepatology) Foundation has generously supported APCs for all articles. The JGH Foundation continues to support APCs by full fee waiver or a discount for authors from developing countries. Cascaded articles from the JGH continue to enjoy a full fee waiver until the end of 2019.

Up to now, we have received indexing from the Directory of Open Access Journals, Embase (Elsevier), and PubMed via PMC deposit (NLM). Our Publishing team from Wiley is working very hard to obtain further indexing in the shortest possible time.

We will continue publishing every two months, and the first issue for 2019 will be in February 2019.

We have had many submissions to the journal over the second half of 2018, with several high-quality articles submitted and published. I look forward to your continued support for the new year, 2019.
