

Editor's note

We have two excellent review articles for this issue of JGH Open: Inflammatory bowel disease and the South Asian diaspora and Precision treatment in colorectal cancer: Now and the future, Surveillance for colorectal cancer.

Farrukh and Mayberry's brief review of the South Asian diaspora in Leicester with inflammatory bowel disease is a review of their published work on this epidemiological aspect for over 20 years and provides interesting reading for all of us in the Asia Pacific region where the incidence of inflammatory bowel disease is increasing.

The second review article by Yau provides a well-written overview of precision or personalized treatment, with special reference to the use of molecularly targeted drugs.

This month, JGH Open turns 2 years old. We have a steady flow of submissions, and I am truly pleased with this. I look forward to continued support from all authors and readers.
