

Erratum to: Finding people like me: contact among young adults who share an open-identity sperm donor

J.E. Scheib ^{1,2,*}, E. McCormick³, J. Benward⁴, and A. Ruby²

¹Psychology Department, University of California, Davis, Davis, CA, USA ²The Sperm Bank of California, Berkeley, CA USA ³University of California Davis Medical Center, Sacramento, CA, USA ⁴Private Practice, San Ramon, CA, USA

*Correspondence address. Psychology Department, University of California, Davis, One Shields Ave., Davis, CA 95616, USA, E-mail: jescheib@ucdavis.edu  <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-4767-1146>

Human Reproduction Open, 2020, hoaa057, <https://doi.org/10.1093/hropen/hoaa057>

In the originally published version, a technical error removed instances of the terms 'related', 'unrelated', 'relatedly' and 'relatedness'. The Publisher apologizes to the authors and readers for these omissions. The terms have been reinstated in the following locations:

- Abstract, third section
- Introduction, paragraph 2, sentence beginning 'Challenges can arise'
- Introduction, paragraph 3, sentence beginning 'But some donor-conceived'
- Materials and methods, paragraph 3, sentence beginning 'The final sample size'
- Materials and methods, final paragraph, sentence beginning 'To assess whether'
- Results, paragraph 3, sentence beginning 'Being in contact'
- Results, sub-heading 'Motivations, experiences and related themes'
- Results, sub-section 'Potential relationship, potential family', first sentence
- Results, quotation beginning 'It would be a really special'
- Results, sub-section 'Motivations: relation to experience', second sentence
- Results, sub-section 'Motivations: relation to family type', first and second sentences
- Results, sub-heading 'Finding similarities: physical and related traits'
- Results, quotation beginning '[S]ome people will say that'
- Discussion, fourth paragraph, sentence beginning 'Relatedly, van den Akker et al.'
- References, Crawshaw et al. (2015), article title
- References, Freeman et al. (2014), book title.