

Supporting Information

for Adv. Sci., DOI 10.1002/adv.202412469

The Cerebrospinal Fluid Secretion Rate Increases in Awake and Freely Moving Rats but Differs With Experimental Methodology

*Trine L. Toft-Bertelsen, Beatrice L. Edelbo, Annette B. Steffensen, Sara D. Lolansen, Jonathan H. Wardman, Dennis B. Jensen and *Nanna MacAulay

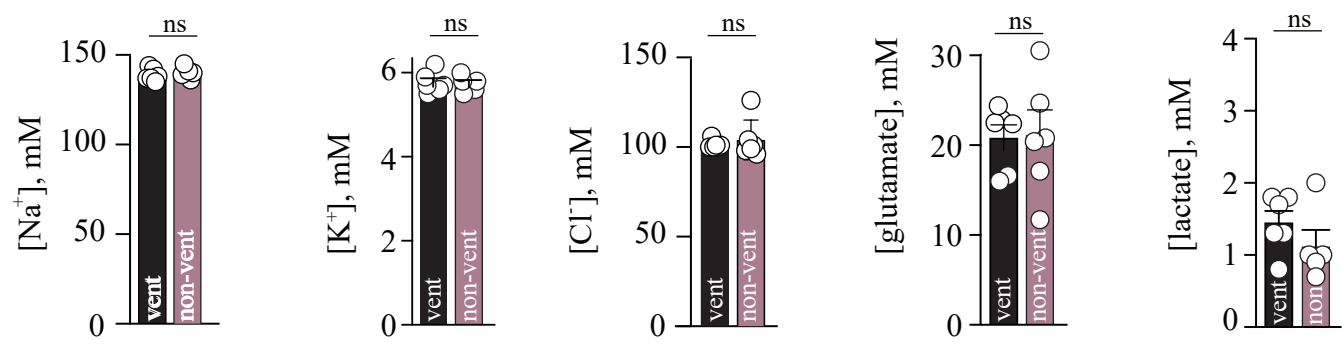

Figure S1. Blood electrolytes in ventilated and non-ventilated rats. Plasma [Na⁺], [K⁺], [Cl⁻], [glucose] and [lactate] in ventilated (black) and non-ventilated (purple) rats. n = 5-6 of each. Statistical significance determined by one-way ANOVA with Tukey's multiple post-hoc test.